

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A test kit is disclosed for diagnosing periodontal disease in a patient by analysing a sample from the oral cavity of the patient. The test kit includes at least a first detection assay for detection of a first substance originating from bacteria and at least a second detection assay for detection of a second substance originating from the immune or inflammatory system of the patient.